CARLSTADT, ALBERTA, THURSDAY MAY 29, 1913

One Dollar Per Annum

WEBSDALE WARBLINGS

Seeding is finished and every one is busy breaking while moisture lasts.

Mr. Theo. Lavold is returning to his homestead after an absence of two weeks in Brooks.

All wheat and oats and some flax is well up and every field is green. The grain has secured a good start, and shows every prospect of a good year, under favorable conditions.

Messrs. Stevens and Abbey are plowing for Mr. E. W. Jones with their engine.

The dirt is flying on the grade. Five grading camps in this neighborhood are working full time, using grading machines, mules and horses. McCorkindale, Noehren, Mannix, Larson, and Peterson, are the contractors. They have a number of teams on the trail freighting from Tilly.

The surveyors are busy covering their residences and surveying the work for the contractors. The town requires a daily water supply of seventy thousand gallons for engines. The townsites will be sold in the fall.

The surveyors are working on location of ballast pits for the track laying.

A party of government surveyors are working in 21-10 raising half mounds, and laying out homestead land within a large lease next the river.

Mrs. E. M. Peckham returned to her home in Albany, Wisconsin, after a month's visit with her grand daughter, Mrs. W. H. Millard.

M. A. Phelps of Exshaw spent a week with his sister, Mrs. W. H. Millard.

Polona Palaverings

The services held at the Polona school house on Sunday last were quite well attended, Mr. A. Kemp of Tide Lake being the speaker. Services will be held there every other Sunday during the summer months.

Mr. Jack Liddle of Peerless was calling on 'Yinfield' Foxton on Tuesday night.

Miss M. E. Dart, and Clyde Arnold of Polona attended the Blue Grass Sunday School last Sunday.

C. A. Wallace and N. A. Swift left on Tuesday for Tilly. They expect to stay there for a few days.

Mrs. Gray and daughter Minnie were among the Carlstadt shoppers on Saturday last.

PEERLESS POSTINGS.

Messrs. Chas. Watt and James Pruett have purchased a gasoline plowing outfit. The engine is a 45 h.p. I.H.C. and one of the new 1913 models. This machine is the first one of that model to be shipped into this country, and without a doubt will be able to turn over many acres of the virgin sod this summer, to the entire satisfaction of all who employ its services. Messrs. Watt and Pruett are to be complimented on the substantial outfit they have purchased. We understand they are open for work in any quantity.

Miss Johnston of Gleichen and Mr. Labl of Blue Grass spent Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Victor Jensen.

Messrs. George Trile and Humphrey Davy were in Medicine Hat on Tuesday last week.

Our old friend "Spika" rests twenty four hours each day and still he's kicking because the days aren't longer so he can have an easier time.

Messrs. J. L. Brown, V. Jensen, A. W. Lloyd, A. Whitney, C. Watt, J. Pruett, G. Trile, H. Davy, T. Mosgrove, J. Bennett, were visitors at the Busy Bung last week.

Mrs. J. Bennett is spending a week with her sister in Langdon.

Peerless, the noted! Nothing slow about us, as we can always stir up excitement when wanted. Last week there were four runaways in this locality. A four horse outfit hitched to drag harrow and in the care of Geo. Lloyd. A team hitched to a wagon and in the care of Happy Whitney. A team and wagon in care of Jack Liddle. A driving horse and buggy in care of Geo. Whitney. This latter horse is eligible in the handle class as it won't H. G. Hanson's grain bin, buggy and all. Then by a few sleight of foot strokes it shed its harness and turned around to view the remainder. We are glad to say our population has not decreased any over this sort of diversion.

Mr. Bert Leslie of Langdon, made a call on George Whitney, while on his way to his homestead up near the new railroad.

H. G. Hanson is erecting four new colony houses on his poultry ranch.

Anglican Church May Fete

The May Fete and dance which opened in the Adanac Parlors Wednesday afternoon was concluded at an early hour this morning (Thursday). Everyone knows it was a success because everywhere in town was there at some stage of the proceedings. The sale of work in the afternoon was a complete sale, not a vestige of the handsome articles remaining after eight o'clock in the evening. Many ladies enjoyed the tea served from five to six o'clock.

Rev. T. W. Cunliffe made a few brief remarks re the laudable enterprise the woman's auxiliary had shown and congratulated them on the successful conclusion of their labors.

Miss Edna Armstrong pleased as she always does in a reading.

Mr. Tom Wilks of Suffield favored the audience with a

Balance Sheet in case you are haled out this year.

The Man Who Insured His Crop.
No waits. No delay. Spot cash. $10.00 per acre. You are paid cost of seed. You are paid for your labor. Don't need credit. Everybody happy. Gosh! I'm glad I insured.

The Man Who Did Not Insure His Crop.
Crop gone. No dough. Busted. Seed and work wasted. Can't get credit. Wife got a long face. Baby needs new shoes. Fierce! Barn country, etc. Gee! I wish that I had insured.

Get on the prosperous side of the ledger. Insure early. Get busy. It doesn't cost any more to insure early and you have added protection. I represent the best company in Canada. Lowest rates of insurance. It doesn't make any difference whether you have got ready cash or not. I can fix you up. I am your friend.

Harry W. Johnson, The Hail Man

Mac's Office News.

We have been so very busy selling cream separators, windmills, plows, pumps, that we could not get out much news this week, and then we celebrated Victoria Day, fishing, but we won't say what we caught.

When Sam Hellevang gets that new Air Motor erected there will be a lot of hot air used up in his vicinity.

Do you suppose there will be enough power left to run all the air motors that we are selling when they all get to running good, or will some of the neighbors have to shut down part of the time so their neighbors can run their mills? We are unable to answer. Can you tell us?

John Bell is terrible proud of his new buggy and fine driving mare. If John don't get a wife now it will be because there are none to be had.

B. M. Leslie, of Websdale, took out a New Deere plow Monday. Melvin Johnson took out a 14-inch rod breaker. They do splendid work in heavy land and Melvin knew what he was buying.

Charlie Goddard is going to harrow his growing wheat. He bought an Ajax Lever Harrow. He believes it pays to harrow the wheat and keep a mule on top as long as he can.

We have some John Deere Ironclad wagons and Davenport roller bearing steel wagons just arrived. If you want a first class wagon, call.

Whenever you want anything in the farm machinery line, give us a chance, a chance is all we ask.

Cupid's Bargain

And It Really Was a Very Good One.

By LESLIE HOLMES.

"But, my dear!" interrupted Aunt Ella, reaching for her handkerchief.

Both Graham resumed her interrupted monologue.

"I never saw an advertisement which balanced so tidily with one's qualifications—Wanted: services of a capable young woman for four hours daily. Must be well educated, have pleasant manners, a gift for conversation and make a good appearance. No experience necessary, but large acquaintance desirable. Apply to the Interborough Realty company,—" street. Now, I have the education. Behold my diploma. Miss. Collingwood,—" school! Thanks to my bringing up by the best aunt in the world, I have the reputation of being well-mannered. I am considered chaste without being a bore. My new tailored suit gives me the good appearance. And, certainly I have no experience, but a lot of acquaintance."

Mrs. Graham mopped her eyes daintily.

"I cannot bear to think of you, a Graham of Graham County, going to a bachelorette. Now, there are my circumstances are in style. Well, my dear, the girl said a slender white handkerchief with her aunt's trembling lips and spoke with a tremor not to be affected."

"Aunt, dear, never again speak in that way of our precious family belongings. So long as they are in the safe keeping of me, I shall not be troubled. My honor is saved. I intend to answer that advertisement!"

An hour later the secretary of the Interborough Realty company looked with relief into the face of the last of the Grahams, Miss Graham, who, thanks to the collapse of the bank, was in a position to offer in which experience was not demanded. The secretary of the company, like all men of the world, had recognized the girl so cleverly that she had told the story of her inexperience and needs long before he had reached the requirements of the position. Then he leaned back in his chair and remarked:

"I think you'll do, Miss Graham. We have plenty of money on the Chester terrace, and you are a good girl. We've got the Transit Company company interested in the building which will build houses on the installment plan. We have some wide awake people on the ground, but we are dealing a series of exercises, and we think a bright woman with the gift of saying the right thing at the right minute could put through many a sale, particularly with men. Now, your commission is generally done on a commission basis, but you're rather up against it, and we'll pay you fifteen per cent. of the expenses and give you a month to make good."

He touched an electric bell and said to the answering boy:

"Send in Mr. Langhorne. He's the working head of the transit company and a promising young man. You'll probably have considerable dealings with him. I'll be glad to know if Miss Graham. She's going to be sent to at Hollingworth Terrace."

And thus, with a sweeping gesture, did the secretary of the Interborough Realty company dismiss the young girl's entrance into the business world.

"Fifteen dollars a week? Why, they would have to be paid for the first week, don't you see? She would probably wear out many shoes too, tramping over Hollingworth Terrace. And, besides, no masculine voice broke in upon her reflections, and she found a very good looking young man, with light blue eyes that smiled right into hers, standing at attention, some pamphlets in his hand.

"Perhaps you would like to look over some of our literature before you join us on the first excursion tomorrow?"

"Tomorrow?" echoed Beth. It seemed so dreadfully near this morning of daily bread for herself and Aunt Ellen. But she smiled and accepted the books. Half an hour later it seemed to her as if Hollingworth Terrace meant a sort of paradise for male salesmen and that she was not a creature of them, would be a veritable angel of mercy.

The next day she felt differently. The first excursion was not exactly a success. The air was so hot that neither she and Hollingworth Terrace seemed a wilderness of nurseries, steam rollers, sewer pipes and other things, but a great lot of building material through unfinished streets.

In one of the better houses a colored man served hot coffee and sandwiches to the few excursionists who had braved the elements, but no one was consumed. After the bus had taken the few visitors back to the station, Beth, seated on the bench, looked at the man who had served her. He was a young man, dark-skinned, with a wide smile, and she wondered why some women looked smart and trim even in a cravat and a soft felt hat.

"Those early spring days are so uncertain," she was told. "There was a dreary day at that time. You could just as well build one, for the chimney never smoked a puff of smoke. Then we'd have a snapping, sparkling fire that would make the whole house cheer up. I don't believe we'd make a sale, rain or shine."

"But the dupres would add to the cost of the house," said Langhorne doubtfully.

"And make prospective customers check some of our defects in your house. I noticed you have no back stairs. Now, every apartment house has a separate stair for her and her servant. It is much more punctilious in such matters than the city house keeper."

"Eh—what?" exclaimed Langhorne.

"Yes, and you should have utilized that wasted space for a closet for raincoats, umbrellas, overcoats, and what you will fall for a couple of convenient closets, when stained glass windows and artistic tiles are just used up."

Langhorne was all attention now. "I didn't suppose that a city girl would notice things so closely."

"I began life in a village," said Beth quietly. "Besides, if I am to help you sell these places I must believe in them, and I cannot believe in them unless they are right."

"Before the next excursion day rolled around here had been to bring out under way, and her suggestions for small alterations that would appeal to the feminine mind were being considered. Furthermore, all her plans for the work were commenced."

Hollingworth Terrace became the center around which all the business moved, and Aunt Ellen studied plans and offered suggestions to young Langhorne, who had been to bring out under way, and her suggestions for small alterations that would appeal to the feminine mind were being considered. WRONG ROAD.

Materialists Miss the Evidence of Their Previous Trip.

A salesman once received a letter in the downtown district, bought a new automobile several weeks ago. He got one of the newest models, and on the first recent day he had been invited a small party of friends to take a spin through the country roads. With him he wanted to show off.

"It was a fine day," he let her car go as fast as it could, and they covered a surprising amount of territory in a few hours, long before the sun was high, however, dusk came on rapidly, and though the speed was slower, the certainty of the proper turn was small, and the finally the friend who sat with the driver whistled.

"Ladies, we are off the road. We are lost!"

"Kensense!" growled the owner of the car. "This is the same road we came out on."

"How do you know it ain't?"

"Where's all them dead chickens and dogs we left behind us?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Good Trip.

A Washington man, much given to long foot trips through Virginia, once came upon an unknown and remarkably looking person stretched under a tree, who, upon the approach of the pedestrian, immediately executed a "burry touch" for a dime.

"I saw a fellow like you, my friend, there's a fellow looking for men to help him in his field."

The man, looking person bowed as politely as possible, considering his sitting posture. He then asked the man if he had been to the place that was advertised in the paper as "Harris's Magazine."

TIDE OF IMMIGRATION.

The Total For 1912 Equals Population of New Brunswick.

Immigration added to the population of Canada during the past fiscal year, according to the statistics of the population of New Brunswick, which was 62,432—greater by fourteen per cent. than the population of New Brunswick in 1911-12.

Of the newcomers, 105,452 were British, an increase of nine per cent. over the preceding twelve months; 139,009 came from the United States, an increase of thirty-seven per cent. over the preceding twelve months; and 112,881 came from other countries, an increase of thirty-seven per cent. over the preceding twelve months.

For every twenty of the population of Canada, one newcomer was absorbed—a rate of absorption which has been steadily maintained for the past four years.

For the present fiscal year the outlook is for the maintenance of the same steady rate of growth in the influx of new citizens from older and less fortunate lands. The Immigration Department expects the total for the current year to be about 600,000, although the present financial stringency, felt especially in western Canada, is a hindrance to the influx of farmers from the western American states. At present the tide of settlers is rolling in at the Atlantic coast, the rate of immigration being one thousand per day. The new Anglo-Canadian service, operated by the P. N. E. C., is bringing in the influx of hardy and industrious newcomers from the United States. They are finding ready employment as well as the work of the war, and contractors are eagerly snapping up men.

Aid For Farmers.

More than $250,000 is expended annually by the Dominion Department of Agriculture in carrying out the interest of the farmer in the community. This large amount of money is divided among several branches of the department, with which they are entrusted. The P. N. E. C. is the branch which is in charge of the distribution of all phases of agriculture, and the P. N. E. C. is the branch which is in charge of the distribution of all phases of agriculture.

While all unconsciously, perhaps, reap benefits from this work, much of the money is expended in the distribution of all phases of agriculture, and the P. N. E. C. is the branch which is in charge of the distribution of all phases of agriculture.

Buy Brains and Honesty

Learn to learn and clay is clay; but there is a vast difference in the value of adjoining farms because of the men who work them. Iron is iron and steel is steel, but the difference between gasoline engines and wind-mills produced of iron and steel is caused by the honesty of the maker. This is why the Ontario Wind Engine & Pump Co.'s goods give universal satisfaction.

Carlstadt News Says

The death of Luther McCarty, world's heavyweight champion, in the fighting ring at Calgary on May 24th, is now history. Pelkey, his opponent in the fight which only went one minute and thirty five seconds, has been arrested on the charge of manslaughter, but is out on bail. Following the tragic event on Saturday morning, a fire that night destroyed the Tommy Burns Arena where the fight took place.

The blow that felled McCarty was the death blow to prize-fighting in Western Canada. They have been called boxing contests, but have been apparently merely prize-fights under the management which has, so far, controlled them. Boxing is a manly art and, in many Y.M.C.A. institutions, it is encouraged in the gymnasium, but when a purse of many thousand dollars is held up, it becomes a finish fight, often with disastrous results.

Monday was a humdrum for business in town. Unlike the merchants in neighboring towns, who are growling about trade conditions, Carlstadt merchants are smiling. We are very modest, but just here, we come forward to make this claim. It helps a whole lot having a live up-to-the-minute newspaper in this town. The News asks for your support. It deserves it. We are here to advertise the success of your business and of our town. We are here to do your printing. Subscribe for the News and keep pace with the growth of Carlstadt.

That big noise over in the west the other day was the editor of the Brooks Bulletin, throwing a fit about the gauge on Saturday.

Really now, when will the Council put up that firehall? Carlstadt has not been exhausted its credit, and the apparatus must be protected.

Weather conditions continue ideal for grain growing. A good year is a certainty.

"O.H.M.S."

Tribulations of a Telegraph Operator Who Rashly Accepted that Position at Langevin, but was overwhelmed by Postage Stamps.

Did you ever read the story "O.H.M.S." or the Langevin operator. It is well known to the citizens that in the early days this place was called Langevin. An amusing story was published in the Railroad Man's Magazine, under the heading given above and depicts the trials of the local operator and postmaster here when the town was only a freight car. The News will publish this in two instalments. See next week's paper for the second instalment.

On His Majesty's Service! Just let that sink in, old fellow.

Han's! It's a fine, high sounding significance? Doesn't it puff you up with grandeur? I had its impressive weight hanging onto me up in 'Sunny Alberta' once, and there are a number of gray spears in this old mop of mine that I attribute to nothing more than the care caused by those four letters.

The boomer who had lately come into our midst was speaking. He usually had a yarn about the un-broken trails of the sounder and key to unfold, so I suggested that he come through with the rest of it.

"Well, it was this way," he said. "I happened to be in Winnipeg during the end of November, some six years ago, unattached to a job or finances, and slightly worried about my future. The weather was being forecasted toward zero, and the wind made noises like a Kansas cyclone as it chased me around the Pride of Manitoba. That particular part of the beautiful dominion didn't look good to me at all for winter quarters.

"When I spied the chief despatcher for a job as telegraph operator, I told him he'd have to send me as far west as 'Sunny Alberta' if he wished to secure my valuable services. You see, I had heard of this favored section of the great Northwest, and I was hot on the trail of sunshine, because the ice-cream cut I'd bought at a fire sale in St. Louis in July wasn't intended to be worn near the business end of a bunch of blizzards like they have in Manitoba after the 'Autumn winds have turned the leaves to gold.

"They were short of men at the time, and he had a pass to Calgary written out before I got through telling him that all my relatives lived out that way. I was afraid he'd think that I might keep on going after I rode the pass out, but he cut me short on the Uncle and Aunt story.

"That's all right, Smithers," he said. "If all the operators I've sent to the Calgary division had stayed there, as they have promised, and had all the relatives out that way they claimed to have, that Alberta country would be full of tenement houses instead of coyotes and bunch grass."

"That didn't leave anything for me to say, so I grabbed the pass and made my escape.

"I left for Calgary that night, and, after going through a different kind of a blizzard at every division point en route, I finally arrived where the sunshine would have been if it hadn't been working overtime somewhere else.

"The chief of Calgary congratulated me upon my safe arrival and passed me the notorious book of eighty-seven questions, which came in five or six sections each. When two days later, I brought it back, filled out, he congratulated me again, because I hadn't given it up and returned to the States.

"Ever make any mulligans?" he asked me.

"Don't make me laugh! I says, 'I've got a sore lip. Mulligans is what makes me so fat.'

"He thought I hadn't given it a minute, and then said,

"I guess Langevin will be about your size."

"It's not a large place," he added thoughtfully, "but after you get acquainted with the mounted policemen on that beat it won't be so bad. He makes Langevin about once a week. You'll be able to save money down there, too. There ain't any place to spend it."

"When I got to Langevin that night at about nineteen o'clock, as they say in the Dominion, I realized he had spoken the truth. The signal-light was the only illumination I could locate, and two box cars set together represented the city and suburbs of my future home.

"The recluse who had been on the job for a year met me with open arms. He'd resigned three months before, and could hardly believe he was finally about to get away. He transferred a latching outfit to me in about two minutes, tried to tell me all about the place in another minute, and then made a second sprint for a freight train that was on the siding, waiting to follow the passenger. As he was going through the doorway he called out,

"Oh, by the way, you're postmaster here, too. I forgot to tell you." And then he was gone.

"I was overcome for the moment by my hasty appointment, and could not raise my voice to call him back. It was an honor all unexpected and unsought. Though it had passed from the shoulders of the late incumbent to mine with the utmost freedom and lack of formality, it produced in me a feeling of embarrassment entirely unsuited to the occasion.

"I went through the post-office stationery and guide-book in an effort to find out what might be expected of the postmaster at Langevin, Alberta, but only gathered the undeniable fact that I was On His Majesty's Service. O.H.M.S. frowned at me from the corners of envelopes. Serious and official looking blanks and rubber stamps of all shapes and sizes left only an impression of those four characters, which seemed to leer at me in critical contempt of my feeble efforts to understand how it all had happened.

"It finally gave it up, and retired under the full burden of my responsibility. While the coyotes howled and the wind screeched through the cracks in my box-car apartments, I dreamed uncanny dreams in which that fiendish combination of the alphabet, O.H.M.S., played a prominent and terrifying part.

"Early in the morning I arose and looked the situation over by daylight. It was not so bad. A natural gas well with pipe connections to the car, furnished me heat and light. My batching outfit was complete, and I was well supplied with provisions. I stepped outside and found that my view in any direction was obstructed only by the sky-line and cattle. About a mile before me was another box-car belonging to the section-men, who were Galicians. They had once been blown up by an explosion of gas in the section-house, cellar, and had immediately requested that their position be established at a safe distance from the gas-well.

"When the gang passed me on their hand-car I found that none of them, not even the boss, could talk English enough to keep himself warm. By producing a mulish and gasconading whiffy for half an hour, I learned from them with more or less uncertainty, that the punch was only hung twice a week, on Wednesdays and on Saturdays. I had arrived Saturday night, so for the time being I dismissed the problem of heating the car.

"It occurred to me next that I hadn't noticed any stamps about the post-office department. It (Continued in our next issue.)

FROM THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

Wonderfully fertile land is offered for sale by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at prices ranging from $11 to $30 per acre.

There is no better agricultural land than this virgin Canadian soil. It is unsurpassed for all forms of agriculture, including grain growing, stock raising, dairying, poultry culture, vegetable growing, and general mixed farming! The lands are convenient to railways and markets, and are located in a land of low taxation and delightful climate.

TWENTY YEARS TO PAY

Under the Company's new policy, no land is sold to speculators, but only to those who will occupy and improve it. The terms of sale are now on-twentieth cash and the balance spread over twenty years, with interest at six per cent per annum.

ASSISTANCE TO FARMERS

Under certain conditions the Company will advance a loan of $2000 to new settlers to be used in erecting a house and barn, fencing the land, and sinking a well. This loan is repayable on the same terms as the purchase price. For illustrated literature, maps, and full particulars, apply to

Public notice is hereby given that the following By Law has been introduced in the council of the rural municipality of Sunny South No. 123, and that unless within 20 days after the last session of this notice at least ten electors of the municipality petition the council to submit such by law to the vote of the resident electors of the municipality, the Council will proceed to pass same, namely:

BY LAW No. 2.

A By Law of the Rural Municipality of Sunny South No. 123 to restrain and regulate the running at large and trespassing of animals.

The council of the Rural Municipality of Sunny South No. 123 enacts as follows:

1. This by law shall apply to the following animals. Horses, cattle, sheep, and hogs.

No such animal shall be permitted to run at large at any time on any highway, street or lane or on any land or premises within the limits of the Rural Municipality of Sunny South No. 123 other than that owned or occupied by the owner or owners of such animals.

2. For the purpose of this by law the terms horses and cattle, sheep and hogs shall include the singular as well as the plural, and the term horses shall include mules and donkeys, and the term cattle shall include all horned cattle or cattle that have been dehorned or are naturally without horns.

3. Any animal found trespassing upon any land or premises other than that owned or occupied by the owner or owners of such animals or on any highway within the limits of the municipality shall be liable to be impounded, and may be sold under the provisions of the By Law respecting Pounds and Poundkeepers unless the damage caused by such animals so trespassing, and the expenses of impounding same and the lawful fees be sooner paid.

4. Nothing in this by law shall prevent any person from recovering compensation in any court of competent jurisdiction from any person owning or having the custody of any animal through which such damage has been caused.

5. Any animal found at large contrary to the provisions of this by law or any other by law of the municipality shall be liable to be impounded by any person, and sold according to the provisions of the by law respecting pounds and poundkeepers unless the damage caused by such animals and the expenses and fees incurred to impounding the same and the lawful pound fees be sooner paid.

The last date of insertion of this notice is June 12th, 1913.

We had intended having a splash about last Saturday's ball game at Brooks, but what's the use? Other good items would have to suffer for it went in. The score was three to one of thirty to ten, whichever you like best. We think in favor of Brooks.

Baseball Game at Tripola.

One of the most exciting games of the season was witnessed by the writer at Tripola on the afternoon of May twenty fourth between the Tripola nine and the Golden West nine. The game was called promptly at three o'clock, the Golden West boys being the first to bat. Throughout the whole nine innings, nothing but clean base ball was played. It was rumored that the homesteaders would be able to play with some of the league teams if they had a little practice and after seeing how they managed themselves on the twenty fourth, the writer begins to think that the rumor is correct. But after playing the full nine innings, the score stood ten to seventeen in favor of the Tripola boys.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drummond returned from a visit to Calgary on Tuesday evening.

J. Johnston of Tripola was in town on Monday.

Sunny South council met on Monday in town. The stock bylaw, published in this issue, was moved up a peg, also the bylaw regarding moving of portable engines. A. S. Lockem, Jack Bell, and D. O. Leitch, were appointed weed inspectors subject to their acceptance.

Charles England has moved into the residence at the corner of Broadway and Carlstadt Streets.

Miss L. Birce, Miss A. Potter, and Miss Lily McIntosh, spent the holiday at their homes in Tripola.

Mr. W. K. Gish has kindly consented to give a Lecture on Alaska, Sunday June the first at two o'clock in the Rainy Valley Schoolhouse. Come and bring the Ladies. His free.
